SoCal's Women of Influence

RISING
TO THE
TOP

By Erin Cassin

We are pleased to see that the pool of qualified nominees for our REAL ESTATE SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA's Women of Influence feature expands with each successive year that we publish the list, as it is further evidence that an increasing number of female talents in the commercial real estate industry are rising to the top. Highly regarded in their specializations, which range from entitlement law to property management, these women are especially impressive because of their commitment to helping other females in the field. Many volunteer as mentors, speak at educational events and hold key positions in industry associations. They also devote their energies to the community outside of commercial real estate, working with a variety of philanthropic causes.

We commend this year's honorees on their valuable contributions to both the commercial real estate industry and the Southland community at large, and wish them continued success in their climb to the top.

Sheryl L. Mazirow, CCIM
President

A bona fide trailblazer in the commercial real estate industry, Sheryl Mazirow left Grubb & Ellis in 2001 to start her own company, which is touted as "the only women-owned tenant representation firm in the Los Angeles Basin." She brings with her more than two decades of experience in the commercial real estate industry. Mazirow Commercial's area of expertise is representing Tenants in the renewing leases, exercising of options, relocations and acquisition and disposition of owner-user buildings. Sheryl wowed the industry this year with concluding one of the largest transactions along the 101 corridor in Agoura Hills, California. In addition to her duties as president and founder of her own company, Mazirow continues to participate in organizations such as the National Association of Women Business Owners, CCIM Los Angeles chapter, Professional Networking Group and The Executives, which supports the Jewish Home for the Aging.
